SPIES IN OUR MIDST

Tech-business owner Lindsey Carlisle is enjoying an evening with friends on Boston's North Shore when she receives an unexpected visit from the FBI. As the agents describe an explosion and fire at her sister Cat's home—and the discovery of two bodies in the ruins—Lindsey is stunned by the news and completely unprepared for the questions that follow. Shock turns to anger as the implication becomes clear: the FBI believes her sister is connected to terrorism.

Armed only with confidence in her sister's patriotism, Lindsey sets out to learn the truth. When she dives into a backup of Cat's computer and discovers a sophisticated program—one with US government fingerprints—she finds more questions than answers. Revelations about Cat's life force a reevaluation of every aspect of their shared history, as seemingly unremarkable events take on a darker meaning and mounting evidence points to an imminent attack on US soil.

Against a backdrop of international intrigue, Spies in our Midst paints a story pitting sibling loyalty against national allegiance, with ordinary people drawn into events requiring the most difficult choice of all: who to trust with your life.

SPIES WE KNOW

In their pursuit of a suspected terrorist, intelligence operative Cat Powell and Washington insider Paul Marshfield find their efforts stalled, until an intercepted e-mail leads them to the door of an Indian man visiting the United States. What their elite team of operatives discovers in his apartment sets off alarms that an attack may be looming on the horizon.

When additional evidence implicates a respected Indian businessman and his family, and the name surfaces of a Soviet agent once posted to Mumbai, Cat and Paul are forced to revisit the past ... and confront the deadly consequences of decisions made long ago.

In this rousing tale of international intrigue, Cat, Paul, and their team race across the globe—and against the clock—in a desperate effort to stop an enemy with murderous intent.
